In deciding to run for probate judge, candidates need to be aware of the demanding nature of the position. As identified in the Minimum Standards for Probate Judges, the judge needs to devote the necessary time and attention to judicial functions and court operations to ensure effective, efficient and expeditious service.

All courts are required to be open 40 hours per week. While judges are not prohibited from outside employment, candidates should plan to commit the majority of the workweek to court duties. Canon 3 of the Code of Probate Judicial Conduct obligates the judge to perform all the duties of the office in a diligent and prompt manner. The Code further provides that a judge's judicial duties must take precedence over all other activities.

Successful candidates need to be aware that they are required to participate in an intensive 40-hour training program. All-day educational programs have been scheduled for two Fridays in November and three Fridays in December of 2014, beginning the Friday after Election Day: November 7 and 14 and December 5, 12 and 19. The seminars are conducted at this office. New judges are also required to attend the Connecticut Probate Assembly seminars scheduled for Tuesday, November 18, 2014 and Wednesday, January 14, 2015. Attendance at all of these seminars is mandatory for newly elected judges.

In addition, the continuing judicial education requirements under the statutes and Regulation 26 mandate that the judges maintain their skills by earning 15 hours of credit each year. All 15 hours must be earned by the personal attendance of the judge at courses of approved continuing education instruction. Eight of these hours must be sponsored by the Probate Court Administrator or the Connecticut Probate Assembly.

Lastly, candidates should pay particular attention during the election process to Canon 5 of the Code, which relates to political activities and campaign fundraising. The materials from the January 29, 2014 seminar on Campaign Ethics presented by the Probate Assembly Ethics Committee will provide candidates with further guidance.
